Background

ReturnToWorkSA has had schemes concerning the imposition of supplementary levies and the remission of levies since 1990. Factors such as the cost and incidence of claims were used to determine whether a supplementary levy would be imposed or a remission of levy would be granted.

Prior to 1 July 2012 a determination of the Board, referred to as the 'Levy Adjustment Scheme' (LAS), enabled WorkCoverSA to impose supplementary levies and grant remissions pursuant to section 67 of the Workers Rehabilitation and Compensation Act 1986 (the WRC Act).

With the introduction of the previous premium system under the WRC Act on 1 July 2012, specific provisions were made for a Remissions and Supplementary Payments Scheme. Section 72C of the WRC Act provided the legal authority for the creation of remissions and supplementary payments in accordance with a scheme that was published in the Gazette.

Section 147 of the Return to Work Act 2014 (the Act) specifies the circumstances in which ReturnToWorkSA may grant a remission of part of a premium or fee, or impose a supplementary payment on an employer. The Act also provides for a remission of any premium or fee granted or supplementary payment imposed to be adjusted or revoked for any other reason ReturnToWorkSA determines to be appropriate and relevant. The details of the Remissions and Supplementary Payments (RASP) Scheme are approved by the Minister and published in the Gazette.

Reasons for change

Changes to the RASP are necessary to ensure the RASP scheme is consistent with the requirements of the Act and the Return to Work Regulations 2015. These include changes to:

- Ensure the schedule of non-compliances detailed within the RASP emphasizes the essential obligations of an employer, relevant to the achievement of the objects of the Act, where the contravention or failure to comply with the relevant provision does not constitute a summary offence.
- Ensure consistency with the ReturnToWorkSA Premium Model.
- Reflect the value of the supplementary payments in response to removal of employer categories (small, medium and large) from the Workers Rehabilitation and Compensation Regulations 2010.

Aim of this Guideline

This guideline outlines ReturnToWorkSA's Remissions and Supplementary Payments (RASP) Scheme, the enforcement process, potential penalties under the Act, natural justice and employers' rights of appeal.

Balanced, transparent and appropriate application

Section 147(5) of the Act provides for the Minister to approve a scheme for the imposition of supplementary payments and the granting of remissions.

The RASP scheme is a regulatory instrument used by ReturnToWorkSA to facilitate achievement of the objects of the Act.

Whilst the vast majority of employers meet their obligations under the Act, ReturnToWorkSA requires a mechanism for supporting compliance and providing a deterrent for non-compliant behaviour.

ReturnToWorkSA is committed to administering the RASP Scheme in a fair and transparent manner that is consistent with the objects of the Act and without bias towards the interests of employers or workers.

ReturnToWorkSA recognises that where non-compliance with an employer's obligations does occur, this can be a result of an employer's lack of understanding of its legislative obligations. With this in mind, in administering the RASP scheme, ReturnToWorkSA will:

- Contact the employer and alert them that ReturnToWorkSA has identified the non-compliance
- Seek a commitment from the employer to rectify the non-compliance within a timeframe agreed by ReturnToWorkSA
- If a commitment is not made by the employer or a commitment is made but not satisfied within the agreed timeframe, ReturnToWorkSA may impose a Supplementary Payment without further notice.

Employers can expect ReturnToWorkSA to:

- provide all employers with procedural fairness in the investigation of matters contemplated by this scheme;
- where appropriate, seek to facilitate an employer's compliance with the matters contained within the RASP Scheme by supporting an employer's understanding of their obligations;
- ensure that the potential imposition of a supplementary payment is considered in the context of the broader regulatory framework and is the most appropriate regulatory option available for the non-compliance;
- consider the relative seriousness and significance of the matters being investigated to ensure that if a remission is granted or supplementary payment imposed, that it is responsible and appropriate to specific circumstances.

Regulatory Framework

Compliance Options

Employer compliance will be driven by a combination of approaches such as:

- providing employers time to rectify incidences of non-compliance (where appropriate)
- education and advice on employer obligations
- notification of alleged non-compliances
- proactive identification of non-compliance
- prosecution

Where ReturnToWorkSA determines that an obligation has not been met, the prospect of proceeding with the imposition of supplementary payment, or to a prosecution, will be assessed.

Supplementary Payments

ReturnToWorkSA believes it is important that the imposition of a supplementary payment be a significant deterrent to ensure employers are cognisant of their obligations and receive an appropriate penalty for non-compliance.

ReturnToWorkSA's imposition of a supplementary payment should:

- be transparent and easily explained – it is important that employers understand when and how a supplementary payment may be imposed on them.
- be fair – the supplementary payment should be appropriate to the nature of the breach and the employer's size.
- be effective – the supplementary payment should be used as a lever to address non-compliance, compel employers' attention and act as a general deterrence.

There are multiple provisions in the Act and regulations giving rise to ReturnToWorkSA's entitlement to seek information. Where there is a non-compliance with such a request or requirement for information ReturnToWorkSA will have regard to the duration, materiality and severity of the non-compliance. Factors such as the level of recklessness or deliberateness in the supply of misleading or incorrect information will be likely to attract more serious supplementary payments than those where the matter was caused by an inadvertent error.

Where a supplementary payment is imposed, the calculation of the supplementary payment can be based on relevant claims costs or the employer's base premium up to a fixed amount that is considered appropriate to the size of the employer.

Only one supplementary payment can be imposed on an employer in any one premium period. The imposition of a supplementary payment is not confined to the premium period in which the relevant breach or breaches arise. If, after having imposed a supplementary payment on an employer in a particular period, ReturnToWorkSA determines that circumstances exist for the imposition of an additional supplementary payment, ReturnToWorkSA may impose the additional supplementary payment in the next premium period.

Prosecution

Where appropriate ReturnToWorkSA may consider prosecuting offences under the Act.

ReturnToWorkSA will pursue prosecutions if the merits of the matter generally meet the following criteria:

- There is a prima facie case with a reasonable prospect of success; and
- The prosecution is considered to be in the public interest.

The Crown Solicitor conducts prosecutions on behalf of ReturnToWorkSA for alleged offences under the Act in accordance with the prosecution policy of the Office of The Director of Public Prosecutions.

Remissions

ReturnToWorkSA may grant an employer a remission or a part of a premium or fee that would otherwise be payable by an employer where the employer demonstrates their actions or behaviour has produced benefits to the employer's workers and the scheme.

What to do if you disagree

All employers will be afforded natural justice in determining if a supplementary payment is to be applied and the amount of that payment. Where an employer is of the view that the decision to impose a supplementary payment is unreasonable, it will have the ability to lodge an application for review with the ReturnToWorkSA Premium Review Panel.
