DETERMINATION AND REPORT OF THE REMUNERATION TRIBUNAL

No. 6 of 2003

CHIEF MAGISTRATE AND DEPUTY CHIEF MAGISTRATE SALARY REVIEW

1. Introduction

- 1.1 Earlier this year, the Remuneration Tribunal received letters from the Chief Magistrate and the Deputy Chief Magistrate seeking a review of their salaries as a result of changes to jurisdiction and changed duties.
- 1.2 The Tribunal sought further details from the Chief Magistrate and Deputy Chief Magistrate to enable the requests to be given proper consideration. The information sought related to those changes in duties which have increased the value of the work since the current relativities were set in 1992 and confirmed in 1995 and any changes to jurisdiction which may have occurred other than those recently considered in the Magistrates Determination of 2002 (Determination No. 5 of 2002).
- 1.3 Submissions were invited from the Premier (as Minister responsible for the Remuneration Act 1990) and the Attorney-General in relation to the Chief Magistrate and Deputy Chief Magistrate's requests for review of salary.
- 1.4 The Tribunal received further written submissions from the Chief Magistrate and the Deputy Chief Magistrate and submissions on behalf of the Minister in relation to both the Chief Magistrate and Deputy Chief Magistrate's salary reviews.
- 1.5 On 14 August 2003, the Tribunal heard oral submissions from Kelvyn Prescott, Chief Magistrate, and David Watts, the Premier's representative, in relation to the Chief Magistrate's salary review.
- 1.6 Mr Prescott's submission provided a summary of the changes that have occurred within the role of the Chief Magistrate over the last 12 months. Changes discussed included the current social climate and framework; public expectations and accountability; role within the courts in consulting the community and media liaison; establishment of new courts and contemporary sentencing; court administration and the courts improvement unit; and comparison with other State magistracies. Mr Prescott also referred to letters received from Justice Selway and Senior Judge Moss that support the nexus of salary and conditions of the Chief Magistrate and that of a District Court Judge. Information provided demonstrated that in New South Wales, Victoria and Queensland the Chief Magistrate was paid the same salary as a District Court Judge or equivalent in those States.
- 1.7 Mr Watts' submission, on behalf of the Minister, did not support the application from the Chief Magistrate. The submission outlined the views on behalf of government and in particular that 'the government believes that the base salary against which all judicial relativities are decided should remain that of a puisne judge of the Supreme Court of South Australia'. The submission discussed the current relativity of the Chief Magistrate's salary when last determined in 2002 and submitted that the changes in jurisdiction for the Magistrates Court, the new specialist courts and the more complex work associated with these functions were taken into account by the Tribunal when the new relativities were set in 2002. It also indicated 'the Chief Magistrate has not shown any increased complexity in his work over and above the work expected of a person managing and directing the work of a court'.
- 1.8 On 5 September 2003, the Tribunal heard an oral submission from Dr Andrew Cannon, Deputy Chief Magistrate in relation to his salary review. Dr Cannon discussed a number of new responsibilities and duties that were not previously undertaken by the Deputy Chief Magistrate, prior to his appointment to the position in December 2002. These included the general management of policy of the three civil divisions of the Magistrates Court; identifying the need for and drafting amendments to the Magistrates Court (Civil) Rules 1992 and Practice Directions; managing the civil court work of the Adelaide Magistrates Court and its circuits; and managing the judicial aspects and matters of practice and procedure for new initiatives such as the electronic filing and the video remand projects.

Dr Cannon also discussed interstate magistracy comparisons and changes in this State's magistracy's organisation structure. In particular, he highlighted the flatter structure that has existed since December 2002 as a result of not filling the positions of Supervising Magistrate and Assistant Supervising Magistrate.

- 1.9 The submission received on behalf of the Minister did not oppose the submission from the Deputy Chief Magistrate. However, specific points made in the Chief Magistrate's submission were reiterated in relation to the salaries of these two offices having been reviewed as part of the general review of magistrates' salaries finalised in mid 2002; the requirement under section 101 of the Industrial and Employee Relations Act 1994, to have regard to and apply the principles, guidelines and conditions and practices or procedures adopted by the Full Industrial Relations Commission in considering this matter; and that there was not sufficient evidence to show that there had been a change in work value since the 2001-2002 review of magistrates' salaries.

2. Work Value Changes

- 2.1 In determining if there was an increase in work value warranting a review of remuneration the Tribunal has had regard to the State wage fixation principles prescribed in the State Wage Case decision of July 2003. In particular, Principle 8, Work Value Changes which state:

'Changes in work value may arise from changes in the nature of work, skill and responsibility required or the conditions under which work is performed. Changes in work by themselves may not lead to a change in wage rates. The strict test for an alteration in wage rates is that the change in the nature of work should constitute such a significant net addition to work requirements as to warrant the creation of a new classification or upgrading to a higher classification.'

- 2.2 As detailed above, both Mr Prescott and Dr Cannon presented submissions based on a change in work value, claiming a number of new and increased responsibilities and accountabilities for the work they are presently performing.

In Mr Prescott's submission he states:

'More important and fundamental to this request, are changes to the duties which have increased the value of work since the current relativities were last confirmed in 1995. In this regard, it is more than fair to say that new and additional responsibilities, constituting a significant net addition to previous work requirements, have occurred since 1995.'

In Dr Cannon's submission he claims:

- 'these additional duties involve work of substantial complexity, skill, and responsibility additional to the pre-existing and ongoing work done by the Deputy Chief Magistrate';
- 'these new duties involve new levels of policy and management expertise not previously required in the duties of the Deputy Chief Magistrate';
- 'these enhanced competencies are now performed without the support previously available to the Deputy Chief Magistrate'; and that
- 'they should be reflected in an increased salary'.

- 2.3 The submission from the Minister's representative did not support an increase in work value for Mr Prescott. The submission states:

'The Chief Magistrate has not shown any increased complexity in his work over and above the work expected of a person managing and directing the work of a court. Best practice, liaison with counterparts and anticipation and forward planning are all tasks undertaken by the Chief Justice and Chief Judge and are tasks expected of any executive of Government and the private sector.'

- 2.4 As stated earlier, the submission in relation to Dr Cannon was not opposed, however the point in relation to there being nothing to show that there had been a change in work values since the 2001-2002 review of magistrates' salaries was reiterated.
- 2.5 The Tribunal, in further informing itself on the matters, met with the Chief Justice who considered that there had been an increase in the level and range of work as it had become more complex, but that this had affected the work of all courts and not individual positions. It was also understood that a review in terms of general productivity would occur in the annual review of the judicial salaries due to take place in November this year.
- 2.6 In July 2002, the Chief Magistrate and Deputy Chief Magistrate (along with all magistrates) were granted salary increases after a detailed work value examination of the work changes that had occurred in the Magistrates Court since 1992. Within that examination, a number of factors were considered and taken into account both in terms of actual work and the complexity of that work. They included work value changes; changes to jurisdiction; the introduction of specialist courts (Aboriginal, mental impairment, drug, domestic violence and youth); increases in the volume and nature of out of hours work, increases in amount of circuit work, judicial relativities, and interstate relativities. The Tribunal concluded that there were significant net additions to work requirements and resulted in salary increases of $7 440 per annum to the Chief Magistrate and $6 979 to the Deputy Chief Magistrate.
- 2.7 The Tribunal was not convinced that the changes in duties that have occurred since current relativities were set are a significant net addition to the work requirements of the two positions being considered. The basic work requirements and responsibilities have not in the Tribunal's view changed so significantly to warrant creation of a new classification or widening of the salary margins over that of a Magistrate.

3. Comparison of State Judicial Salaries

- 3.1 To assist the Tribunal in its considerations the Tribunal chose to examine other State Judicial salaries. The Tribunal noted that the level of salary paid to the Chief Magistrate in New South Wales, Victoria and Queensland was the same as that paid to a District Court Judge or equivalent. However, it also noted that the number of Magistrates in those jurisdictions was considerably higher than in South Australia.
- 3.2 In the past, comparisons with the Federal and Interstate judiciary have been made with the puisne judge and internal relativities then fixed having regard to the salary determined for that office in South Australia. The Tribunal saw no reason to depart from that practice in this instance and will continue to fix relativities in this State based on the puisne judge salary.

4. Determination

- 4.1 The Chief Magistrate and Deputy Chief Magistrate currently receive salary margins of $29 760 and $16 550 respectively, over and above that of a Stipendiary Magistrate. The Tribunal considers these margins are appropriate and having also had regard to the current salary of a puisne judge, believes the current salaries for the Chief Magistrate and Deputy Chief Magistrate should not be increased.

*Presented by the

GOVERNMENT OF SOUTH AUSTRALIA*COMMENTARY TO THE STATEMENT OF THE AMOUNTS CREDITED TO AND ISSUED FROM THE CONSOLIDATED ACCOUNT FOR THE QUARTERS ENDED
30 JUNE 2003 AND 30 JUNE 2002Receipts

Taxation receipts for the year to 30 June 2003 were $227 million higher than the original 2002-03 Budget estimate. This was mainly due to:

- increased stamp duties ($189 million); and
- increased payroll tax receipts ($23 million)

Commonwealth Grants were $83 million higher than forecast at the 2002-03 Budget.

- GST revenue grants were $110 million higher than expected; while
- transitional budget balancing assistance grants were $27 million lower than originally estimated.

Contributions from State Undertakings (taxes, dividends and other contributions from government corporations) were $43 million higher than expected at the 2002-03 Budget.

Recoveries were $18 million above the 2002-03 Budget estimate. This was mainly due to the higher than budgeted recovery of superannuation receipts from the Electricity Industry Superannuation Scheme (this $32.7 million receipt was fully offset by an increased payment).

Payments

Payments pursuant to the Appropriation Act (eg to agencies) were $82 million lower than originally budgeted. There were lower than budgeted payments in Administered Items for the Department of Treasury and Finance as follows:

- interest on borrowings ($34 million);
- Targeted / Voluntary Separation Package Schemes ($32 million); and
- contingency provisions for investing activities - purchase of plant and equipment ($25 million)

Payments pursuant to standing appropriations on other Acts were $44 million higher than estimated at the 2002-03 Budget. This was primarily the result of the higher than budgeted $32.7 million superannuation payment pursuant to the Electricity Trust of South Australia Act (as noted above, this $32.7 million payment was fully offset by an increased receipt).

Pursuant to section 16 (4) (a) of the Public Finance and Audit Act 1987, the Treasurer approved that the Consolidated Account surplus for 2002-03 of $443.6 million be applied to reduce the Treasurer's debt with the South Australian Government Financing Authority.

Note

Considerable caution should be exercised in interpreting the quarterly statement of consolidated account transactions. Unlike the State budget, the information is purely limited to cash transactions. In addition, the Consolidated Account does not capture all the transactions undertaken by the general government sector (in particular, it does not record receipts and payments from special deposit accounts). Finally, it should be noted that the timing of receipts and payments could be volatile within a particular year. As a result, apparently significant movements between years may only be due to changes in the timing of receipts and payments, and therefore may not have implications for the underlying budget position.
