OCCUPATIONAL HEALTH, SAFETY AND WELFARE ACT 1986

Approved Code of Practice for Working Hours

NOTICE is hereby given that pursuant to subsection 63 (1) of the Occupational Health, Safety and Welfare Act 1986, the following code of practice is an approved code of practice:

Code of Practice for Working Hours

The Code of Practice for Working Hours shall be read as incorporating the 'Foreword', which is included in this notice and shall have effect from 1 July 2010.

P. CAICA, Minister for Industrial Relations

FOREWORD

The term 'approved code of practice' has a particular meaning under the South Australian Occupational Health, Safety and Welfare Act 1986.

An approved code of practice is designed to be used in addition to the Act and Regulations. In proceedings for an offence against the Act, where it is proved that a person failed to comply with a provision of a relevant approved code of practice, the person shall be taken to have failed to exercise the required standard of care, in the absence of proof to the contrary (section 63A of the Act).

Thus, a code of practice provides practical guidance on how a particular standard of health and safety can be achieved. It describes the preferred methods or courses of action for achieving this standard of health and safety. However, an approved code of practice allows the flexibility to show that an equivalent or better standard of health and safety is achieved by alternative action. An approved code of practice is therefore different from a regulation where the responsible person must meet the specific requirement of the regulation.

In summary, an approved code of practice:

- provides practical guidance;
- should be followed unless there is another solution which achieves the same or a better standard of health and safety; and
- can be used to support prosecution.

Codes of practice are approved by the Minister for Industrial Relations, following recommendation from the SafeWork SA Advisory Committee which is constituted under the Occupational Health, Safety and Welfare Act 1986.

Industry-specific regulations on working hours, such as the Rail Safety (General) Regulations 2008 and the Road Traffic (Heavy Vehicle Fatigue) Regulations 2008, already exist in South Australia. These regulations should be referred to by those industries affected as the main tool in addressing working hours and will apply to the extent of any inconsistency with an approved code of practice.

There are particular considerations relating to employees and volunteers engaged in the provision of frontline emergency services and reference should be made to specific guidelines that will be developed to be read in conjunction with this Code.

Regulation of working hours intersects both the areas of industrial relations and occupational health, safety and welfare. Industrial awards and enterprise agreements often specify ordinary hours of work for employees and the payments that attach to work that is outside of those parameters. Award and agreements made under the relevant industrial relations legislation represent compulsory minimum requirements for workplaces. They will prevail over the Approved Code of Practice for Working Hours to the extent of any inconsistency. However the Approved Code of Practice for Working Hours is designed to be complementary tool.
