- (a) a Current User entitling that person to take, from the source specified in the authorisation:
 - where the water taken during the Relevant Period was to water a crop or crops, the amount of water reasonably necessary, in my opinion or the opinion of my authorised agent, to water that crop or those crops, the amount being determined taking into account the maximum area of each crop or crops grown, the water requirements of the respective crop or crops and the irrigation capacity of the irrigation equipment used to water the crop or crops;

Approved Code of Practice for Working Hours

NOTICE is hereby given that pursuant to subsection 63 (1) of the Occupational Health, Safety and Welfare Act 1986, the following code of practice is an approved code of practice:

Code of Practice for Working Hours

The Code of Practice for Working Hours shall be read as incorporating the 'Foreword', which is included in this notice and shall have effect from 1 July 2010.

PAUL HOLLOWAY, Minister for Industrial Relations

FOREWORD

The Minister for Industrial Relations on the recommendation of the SafeWork SA Advisory Committee has approved this code of practice pursuant to subsection 63 (1) of the Occupational Health, Safety and Welfare Act 1986 (the Act).

The SafeWork SA Advisory Committee is made up of employer, union and government representatives who jointly consider proposals for codes of practice, taking into account public comment. This code has been developed following a period of public consultation and feedback and is based on the Western Australian Code of Practice on Working Hours. The Code was updated where necessary to reflect the South Australian jurisdiction, contemporary developments in fatigue management from New South Wales and Victorian publications and to recognise the impact of life responsibilities outside of the workplace on fatigue. The development of the Code has been part of the SafeWork SA Work Life Balance Strategy.

The term 'Approved Code of Practice' has a particular meaning under section 63 of the Occupational Health, Safety and Welfare Act 1986 (the Act).

A Code of Practice provides practical guidance on how a particular standard of health and safety can be achieved. It describes the preferred methods or courses of action for achieving this standard of safety. However, an Approved Code of Practice allows the flexibility to show that an equivalent or better standard of health and safety is achieved by alternative action. An Approved Code of Practice is therefore different from a Regulation where the responsible person must meet the specific requirement of the Regulation.

In summary, an Approved Code of Practice:

- provides practical guidance;
- should be followed unless there is another solution which achieves the same or a better standard of health and safety; and
- can be used to support a prosecution.

Industry-specific regulations on working hours, such as the Rail Safety (General) Regulations 2008 and the Road Traffic (Heavy Vehicle Fatigue) Regulations 2008, already exist in South Australia. These regulations should be referred to by those industries affected as the main tool in addressing working hours and will prevail to the extent of any inconsistency over an Approved Code of Practice.

There are particular considerations relating to employees and volunteers engaged in the provision of frontline emergency services and reference should be made to specific guidelines that will be developed in 2010 to be read in conjunction with this Code.

Regulation of working hours intersects both the areas of industrial relations and occupational health, safety and welfare. Industrial awards and enterprise agreements often specify ordinary hours of work for employees and the payments that attach to work that is outside of those parameters. Awards and agreements made under the relevant industrial relations legislation represent compulsory minimum requirements for workplaces. They will prevail over the Approved Code of Practice for Working Hours to the extent of any inconsistency. However the Approved Code of Practice for Working Hours is designed to be a complementary tool.
